And is ensured to sell as good Ink, as any made in any part of the globe, and warranted to retain its beautiful jet black color which it has at the moment when used, at 50 % less than the same can be bought at any other houses.

People under the impression, that they pay their 320 m/c. by a quart bottle of English Ink, can have the same proved, that most of the Ink sold for English, is made in this country, and imposed upon the public as such. But I am not ashamed to put my own Name on the labels, being fully convinced that my Ink is of a much superior quality, and possesses more virtues than most of the Inks.

I—It is of a very rich black at the moment when used.

II.—Retains its color.

III.—Runs freely off the pen.

IV.—A preserver of the eyes to those, who have much to write at night because they need not to force their eyesight, to see what they have written.

For the reasons explained, I hope that my prejudices generally entertained against Home Manufacture will be laid aside, and all I ask is, to try the same which can be herself to my benefactor, and the country, in assisting Home Industry.

TUESDAY, APRIL 28, 1863.

THE FOREIGN BANQUET IN ROSARIO.

On Tuesday last the foreign merchants of Rosario gave a banquet in honor of the inauguration of the Cordoba railway, and as a tribute of respect to Gen. Mitre, Mr Wheelwright, and the other distinguished visitors. The dinner came off in the Theatre which was most tastefully decorated with the flags of all nations. Covers were laid for 120. At the top of the table sat the President with the Minister Zuviria on his right, the vice President on his left and vis-a-vis with Mr Wheelwright. After ten minutes past 6 o'clock precisely, the President and Mr Wheelwright entered the banquet hall, the band playing the national anthem. The dinner was superb, reflecting the greatest credit on the owner of the Commercial hotel, who brought [illegible] everything especially from Buenos Ayres for the occasion. Scarcely had the merits of the dishes been discussed when Mr Mudrid (one of the committee) rose, and in a short, becoming speech proposed the health of Gen. Mitre, which was drunk with tremendous applause.

The President responded: I feel profoundly the honor, which the foreign commerce of Rosario has thought fit to pay me, and the distinguished manner in which you drank my health. Heaven is witness gentlemen, of the sincerity of my efforts to advance my country and its commerce, and I do assure you that I feel more gratified at the happy termination of yesterday's ceremony, and at the high honors paid me this night than for the greatest victory that I could obtain on the battle-field. Commerce, gentlemen, is one of the most powerful agents for uniting nations. Foreign vessels bring us trade and population, while the all powerful bill of exchange, as the medium through which foreign commerce is carried on, is the great engine of all. With the help of Mr Wheelwright I hope to accomplish much for the advancement of the commerce of Rosario. I believe gentlemen in the eternal glory of peace I count upon you all to assist me in maintaining it [We will, we will, and tremendous cheering]. With peace this country is destined to make ten or a dozen citizens and bind more firmly than ever the commercial ties which link us to all nations with peace, Gentlemen, foreign shipping will crowd our ports with precious cargoes and people our desert pampas with thousands of emigrants. I thank you again gentlemen, and beg in conclusion that you will permit me to propose the health of our esteemed friend Mr Wheelwright. Mr Wheelwright's health was here drank three times three, amidst the most terrific applause, the whole company stood up, the clashing of the glasses, the cheering both inside and outside of the theatre, the hip hip-hurrahs, which positively shook the edifice; may be imagined, but cannot be described. Nothing of the kind has ever to our knowledge occurred in Buenos Ayres; it would seem as if Mr Wheelwright would not be permitted to respond, as this burst of enthusiasm lasted for fully fifteen minutes. At last order being restored,

Mr Wheelwright rose and said: Mr President and gentlemen, I cannot attempt to describe what my feelings this moment, it is a grand thing to see the commercial men of Rosario so enthusiastic in the enterprise which yesterday was inaugurated. I am more than 50 years travelling, I have seen much of the world, but I have never witnessed a greater tribute of respect than that paid me this night; I have never encountered greater or more decided marks of sympathy and friendship than here in the city of Rosario. Seeing the great motive power of the day, had its birth in Spain. In 1546 Blasquani constructed a little steam-boat and laid his scheme before Charles V, who ordered the extraordinary boat to be examined by the Minister. In Barcelona the little boat was set agoing in the presence of more than 10,000 persons; owing to deep rooted prejudices and unhappy circumstances, both Blasquani and his enterprise were stopped. Carlos V could do nothing, and the unfortunate inventor of this 1st steamboat died in the greatest poverty.

Spaniards and their descendants have reason to be proud of him. Surrounded as I am this night by men of learning and talent, who I know represent not only commerce, but also the arts and sciences, men who will assist me I am sure as much as is in their power. I feel gentlemen that I am destined to do away with bullock-carts.

I am sorry that I have occupied so much of your time gentlemen, (no, no,) I am greatly obliged to you for your kindness, and hope that the Almighty God will help me to complete the work which yesterday the President inaugurated. Mr Wheelwright resumed his seat amidst tremendous applause.

The vice President of the Republic, Sr. Don Marcos Paz rose and said: Gentlemen I will not tire you with a recitation of the benefits likely to accrue to this country from the Cordoba railway, but will crave the liberty of proposing a toast.

I am conscious of the efforts which foreigners are making to increase the industry of the country and develop its resources. I am proud to see them happy and comfortable amongst us, I know their exertions to increase our commerce, to introduce new capital, new staples, new railways, and new colonies a compet us. I drink gentlemen to the health and prosperity of every foreigner in this Republic. May the foreign and native element mingle in one harmonious mass in Buenos Ayres, Uruguay, forming thereof ves into one great Argentine family, intent only on the maintenance of peace, and the advancement of the country. (The vice President's toast was received amidst the most enthusiastic applause.)

Mr E. T. Mulhall said: Mr. Pres. of Republic and gentlemen, as an humble though grateful foreigner I rise to respond to the noble sentiments of his Excellency the vice President of this nation. I cannot think that it will be regarded as presumption on my part, to thank your Excellency in the name, and on behalf of every foreigner in the land, when it is remembered that the most important foreign interests, and the wealthiest foreign population in the country are represented by the Standard. I had invited gentlemen when I accepted your kind invitation, to come more as a reporter than anything else, but I cannot permit such noble sentiments as those uttered by the vice President to pass unresponded. Believe me sir that none have more at heart the welfare of the adopted land of this country than the foreigners who have the happiness to reside in it. Forgive me if I say that the great staple of the industry in Bs. As. namely the sheep and wool business is solely due to the indomitable efforts of a foreigner. A new industry has now been introduced, a new staple has sprung up, at the hazard of being called madmen, both my brother and myself have worked unceasingly for the last 12 months to stimulate the growth of cotton. I am happy to say that our efforts have been crowned with success.

We have recently purchased cotton grown with a few leagues of this city. Several influential gentlemen have worked on me since my arrival here—some for the purpose of obtaining seed, others to sell us the cotton which they have already grown from our seed,—the first by no means for distant gentlemen when the cotton crop of the interior will more than double the wool crop of Buenos Aires. Permit me to say that some of my fellow countrymen who have gone before me have left their footprints of agriculture on all Rs. Ayres. I intend to follow in their track; when your rivers are studded with foreign mail bearing down thousands and thousands of Argentine colonists, then perhaps, the Editors of the Standard will be deemed deserving of the high eulogy and valuable sentiments which the Vice President of the Republic has thought fit to pay foreigners this night. I drink, gentlemen to the eastern Republic of the Argentine Republic, tremendous applause, in which the President Ministers and Mr Wheelright heartily joined.

Drs. Rawson, Elizalde, Sr Zuviria, Castellanos, Oroño, Dr Matiezus, Sr Fitlol, proposed other toasts in most eloquent terms, for want of space we are unable to publish them in full.—

Mr. Perkins then rose and said:

Gentlemen—I consider it an honor to be part of to be permitted to speak on an occasion like this, when the principal personages of the country, the President, surrounded by [illegible] his counsellors of state present themselves amongst us to inaugurate, not only the material works of a great undertaking, but to inaugurate a new Era in the history of the Argentine Republic.

If I have done anything to merit this honor, it has only been my constant endeavor to inspire this community with part of the steadfast faith which I entertain that the day would arrived and the epoch and the men, to consummate the great work, the idea of which has been for so many years the theme of the Argentine publicists. Unfortunately it has not been in my power to do more.

Every nation has its epoch for the initiation of great undertakings. We are somewhat behindhand, here, but it is my firm conviction that that epoch has arrived, and that we are now once the spirit of Progress calls to its aid the spirit of Steam, it finds itself infused with the untiring and conquering force of Steam.

Steam, Gentlemen is the slave of man, but it imposes as a condition the mandate "Thy wonderful powers shall be said to have received—continual movement. It is a slave that exacts unceasing employment—and remember that the first employment, the first labor of all of railway are not so important in themselves, as they are, as inevitable precursors of hundreds of the one, and extending of the other.

In England, the generation has not yet passed away which travelled in heavy and slow carriages—Now there is scarcely a hamlet which has not its station, and the day has arrived that the Genius of Steam is pressing its forces for work of the most gigantic its voracious craving "Go ahead, Go ahead!" it cries, and for want of land on a surface already occupied by human laws, they are digging down into the entrails of the earth and are constructing subterranean railroads!

Steam, Gentlemen has taught man that in things terrestrial there is nothing impossible.—Its tremendous impulse has made him understand that which the ancient times would have done honor to the most powerful gods of Grecian Mythology.—Still its exacting demand is not satisfied.

I remember Gentlemen when not a single mile of railroad existed in the United States, at a time when there was not a rail laid in Canada. Now there an 24 thousand miles completed and on active operation! And the time seller may be discounted at New York in latitude 3 and transport himself to Quebec a latitude 48 in a luxurious carriage drawn by flying locomotive!

In less than twenty years there has been expended in England, Canada, and United States alone "three thousand millions" of dollars, (Gentlemen) a sum which almost eludes our powers of perception. And notwithstanding the immense wealth created there is a struggling and the great road which shall unite the Pacific and Atlantic Ocean in North America, is already inaugurated.

In this moment too, has been inaugurated as well, the great road that in South America will unite the two Oceans—Here also will the mighty Slave of man commence his work of Progress and Civilization, and believe me, Gentlemen, that he will be no less exacting here than in other countries—He will give no truce to his masters—

The road to Rosario and Cordoba is nothing more than an essay—a kind of preliminary to the gigantic works which will have for their object the uniting of races now divided and hostile, in one common centre of Civilization Progress and Fraternity.

Let us believe, gentlemen, that this epoch has arrived—that the vast territories of the limited territory of the British Isles so covered with a network of Railways that there is scarcely room for more; and steam and capital cannot stand still they are looking abroad for occupation, they are already knocking at our doors; and, gentlemen, could not also in a more peculiar manner a liberal and enlightened Govern ment, a hopeful and industrious people, and an enthusiastic and capable contractor invite them?

Let us then, gentlemen, converge all our energies in this one subject; let us sacrifice at once all petty and magical ideas and dreams of railways, and above all, let us work for railways with the firm conviction that in this magical power alone will we require to make us great, prosperous and happy!

Be convinced that bound by bands of iron rails, the Republics of the Argentine Confederation will form a fascine which no human power will be able to break asunder.

Let us give one great and unanimous cheer for the Locomotive. which, passing through the fertile and rich plains of the interior, will carry to the ports in the whistle of its engine, the great password of the nineteenth century.—GO AHEAD.

General Mitre and his party with Mr Wheelright retired, but as it was very early about 40 or 50 of the principal foreign merchants with their friends remained at their places, and the gayety of the evening was prolonged.

Sr. D. J. Cruz Ocampo, in most becoming terms proposed the Standard amidst the most tremendous cheering he said it was the steady friend of Industry, and Commerce. The Standard is the organ of progress and the great cotton agitator in this Republic. In Buenos Aires the services which the Standard was effecting, were known and appreciated; Argentines in England write home to their friends, and tell them that the only Buenos Aires paper read in Europe is the Standard amidst the most tremendous cheering. Where are the editors of all the other Buenos Aireas papers? why are they not here to attend this greatest of Argentine festivals? for one half or one fifth of the Standard were not hear I chose I did then indeed be mistaken in the character of the paper and its writers,—at the [illegible] cheering. Gentlemen, they are always absent, but at Railway inaugurations, cotton planting, &c the Standard is ever to be found [illegible] and [illegible] tremendous applause.]

Mr. Mulhall responded, and gave the health of Sr Don Juan Cruz Ocampo, the man who effected peace between Mitre and Urquiza.

Sr Ocampo replied, and gave Rosario and its commerce.

Mr. Tillson then in most eloquent terms proposed the health of Capt. Leech the brave of our interior steam navigation,—Capt. Bruce responded in most grateful terms.

Mr Elizalde then proposed the health of the German commerce of Rosario.

Dr Hertz, responded in an able manner and gave the health of Mr Wheelwright who had proved himself an able and efficient officer—the Capt. of the Port of Rosario,—the man who at the end of night fired the last gun and left in a small boat in the Paraná and with his own hands made prisoners of the Pirates and massacres.

Mr Wheelwright, of the Port, replied, stating that at all times and hours he was ready and willing to do his duty.

The company then separated. Thus ended the Rosario Banquet, an event of no mean importance, in argentine history. The foreigners of Rosario are a most influential body of men, they gave this sumptuous banquet at their own cost, inviting all their native friends but allowing none to pay save themselves.

"OUR ENGLISH GOVERNOR."

To the Nacional,

"Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise," says an old English author, whose writings the Editor of the Nacion-al would doubtless place infinitely below the lucubrations of Aniceto el Pollo, Manuel—gun vania alias "to do" Sarmiento, or any sensible man; and sensible indeed must be the state of his beatitude, when he can seriously set forth such an unfo tunate, ridiculous parallel as that drawn between the Governor of Buenos Aires and that of an English colony, under the head of "Governor Ingles."

I, for one, indignantly reject the odious comparison; for I should be ashamed of that country to which I have the honor, and to which I owe my privilege to belong, if the editor of the Nacional, "or any other man," could indicate an English colony which, after 53 years of self-government, can boast no better administration of justice, no better electoral law, no more public spirit, no more security for life and property, and more monuments of native enterprise than are to be found in Buenos Aires whence it is not surprising citizenship is only acceptable when enforced at the point of the bayonet.

"Is the nomination of a Governor for some English colony trusted of?" asks the learned editor in question; and he pompously replies to his own query—"No; a great question is under consideration." Therefore, the actithesis is a very trifling affair.

Now, I am happy to have it in my power to afford this gentleman some little information relative to British colonies and their governors. I will then show him why the election of a man like Riestra is likely to raise Buenos Ayres to the enviable condition of a British dependency—consequently, is most conducive to the happiness, well-being and prosperity of the country.

At page 31 of Hannay's Almanac for this year will be found the list of the 58 British colonies, with the latest returns of their respective popular tions, &c; from which it may be seen that many possess double that of the Argentine confederation, and that, consequently, reducing the question to the lowest or pecuniary point of view, the elevation of Governor at 10,000 inconvertible paper dollars per month, does not convey with it the importance, the respectability and the specific gravity of the post of, for instance, the Governor General of Canada, at 7777 hard English sovereigns per annum; South Australia, £4000; British Guiana, £6000; Cape of Good Hope, £5000; Ceylon, £7000; Gibraltar, £5000; Victoria, £10,000, &c, to say nothing of the Indian empire, £21,000. Why, even the miserable little Falklands give £900.

Apropos of Victoria: this colony was settled in 1836—300 years after Buenos Ayres: in 1850 it was separated from New South Wales (settled in 1788, and at last returns, in 1857, possessing 305,187 inhabitants, and in 1861 numbered 510,322 inhabitants, with a revenue over £3,000,000, or more than three times as much as the 350 years old town of Buenos Aires). Compare Buenos Aires to a British colony, indeed! Bah!

With respect to the election of Governor: when it is considered that no single work of public utility has yet been carried out without the aid of British capital, and that to British capital and enterprise, struggling manfully against the Anti-Reform Association—whose half-yearly report you published lately—is Buenos Ayres wholely and entirely indebted for the little progress that has been made, it is not too much to expect that the opinion of British residents should be very widely, and I am persuaded that Mr Riestra will consider it a higher honour to be the nominee "of a family of six or eight English houses," than the elect of a parcel of briefless barristers and penniless politicians, who have got into the Chambers by one of the greatest swindles of modern electioneering.

Mr Riestra is taunted with having raised Buenos Aires credit from the ground, and caused the country to be heard of in the very centre of the civilized world, unsuccated with deeds of blood. Undoubtedly, exciting Rosas and Quiroga, Ricbi and Mitre's are the only names which have made Europe. Who so proper to be the Governor of Buenos Ayres, if he will give up the lucrative post of resident director of the London and River Plate Bank, as the man whose fame extends beyond the Buenos Bridge and Belgrano, and whose name inspires confidence in those to whom Buenos Aires must look for advancement. Pray, Mr Editor, for what have unions done for the country? What would they be without English capital? Who has given value to their lands? The merchant sells goods to them at a nominal credit of six months; but it he buys produce, he not only has to pay cash, but very frequently advance money, while the cattle and sheep are still at the mercy of the Indians.

The outstanding debts of English houses—that is the capital upon which natives are working—may be estimated as equal to the entire circulating medium of the country. The new Bank brings 50,000,000, and 100,000,000 more are waiting to come in as soon as obstacle Sarmiento of the Southern track.

All this requires representation, and if Mr Riestra has obtained the good opinion of those who have a greater stake in the country than the natives themselves, he has reason to be proud; and the Editor of the Nacional, with a view to damage, by candidateship, has unconsciously done him a higher compliment than any other Buenos Aires is entitled to.

NEMO.

BANDA ORIENTAL.

By Salto, arrived yesterday, we learn that Flores passed with his over three followers, close to Salto, evidently making for the Brazilian frontier. The conscriptions and the men of property laugh at the would-be liberator, and say that the Spanish papers in Buenos Aires are much to blame for the whole affair. Unfortunate man! he has met with neither sympathy, support, nor even countenance from his own party.

MENDOZA.

The first news of Clavero's invasion had caused great alarm as he had promised to enter the city in triumph, on the 6th. Government had appealed to all the Constitutional native and foreign to repel the invaders, but the Chilian consul warned his countrymen to remain neutral. A body of 200 troops of the line left San Juna, to protect Mendoza.

A new line of diligences was started for San Luis, to communicate with the Rosario mail-coaches.

The province was declared in state of siege on the 7th, and the distance of the city entrenched by Rudesindo Ponce commander of artillery. The citizens were to assemble under arms at the signal of a cannon-shot. A contribution was making, to send a banner to Mexico.

Clavero had seized the important fortress of San Carlos, but was completely routed on the 13th ins leaving 30 killed and escaping towards the Chilian frontier by the river Tunuyan. Seven prisoners were shot, having been taken "en flagranti delicto" Lieutenant Zerpa in a hand to hand encounter with Clavero cut him through he left many friends in Mendoza to deplore his loss. Arredondo was named generalissimo of the province, by Sarmiento, who proclaimed the dictatorship of Cuyo, en route for Mendoza, where they arrived the day before Clavero's defeat, being received with open arms, Quiroga was also there with his regimebt 400 strong.

A newspaper, called El Orden, has been started at Jujuy. The upper provinces are less disturbed.

We learn that the Chaco Indians in their recent inroad at Rio Cuarto, murdered 20 people, carried off 150 Christian captives, with 50,000 head of cattle for booty.

CHILE.

We have the "Ferro-carril" of Santiago up to the 5th inst. The session of the Chilean government knew of Clavero's expedition from San José to invade Mendoza, they sent a force to seize the filibusters; the latter, however, having started 4 days before, were already crossing the Andes, in groups of a dozen men each, with large cargoes of armament, guns, swords, lances, &c.

The inauguration of a statue to General San Martin took place at Santiago on the 5th instant, with the usual accompaniments of fine speeches, enthusiastic applause, &c.

On the 20th March 1863, the Valparaiso street railroad was inaugurated with great pomp, the American minister, Admiral Kilstone, and other British officers and some 60 other guests assisting at a grand banquet. The arrival of H. B. M. "Clio" shortly after the event, sending the commander aboard Mr. Whitehead's claim for compensation for the loss of his mate this gentleman, however, arrived in Valparaiso not to inaugurate friendly relations between G. Britain and Chile. D. Dario Navarro has been received Argentine Consul at Concepcion.

The Spanish frigate Covadonga arrived at Valparaiso; one of her sailors was accidentally killed in the streets. An earthquake was felt at Santiago on the 5th. American ship Ohcon was wrecked off Cape Horn, four of the crew were lost, and the rest rescued by the British barque Jessie, of Liverpool.

The Spanish warsteamers Triunfo and Resolucion were obliged to put back to the Falkland Islands for coal after which they will again double the Cape. The Iguano of Mejillones has been sold by auction, and will be dismantled notes from England to the Republic.

TIBAALDEL KADER—The captain of this vessel reads us the following maritime news for publication.

COTTON IN MENDOZA.

We translate from the Constitucional (7th inst) the following interesting letter:

Mendoza, March 30th 1863.

I plead some of the seeds received from the Minister of Interior, more as an experiment than any thing else. They were sent down on the 15th ult, and one ground in 6 days, the rest in quite hardy and 14 inches high. The agreeably surprised to find the plant covered with pods in 68 days after planting. All who are interested in this new product, would do well to visit my plantation.

On Change.

April 27

Ounces opened at 433 1/2 and rose to 435, but subsequently fell to 433, there was little animation in specie transactions and no sales of foreign gold or Bolivian coverage. 21 55 ounces sold for cash.

240 for Tuesday at 434 to 33.
2075 for Thursday at 433 to 35.
285 for Saturday at 433 2 to 33 1/2.
1750 for May 31st at 430 to 31.
Total sales 6505 ounces.

Nothing has been coined to produce at the pit to-day on account of the continued rain from an early hour in the morning. The sales of wool have been effected from Caquis to Tuesday 6,000 lbs at 8 70 and another lot of 2,000 at 78.

In the Bolsa there was no animation in account of the weather and departure of the mail; the only sales we notice is 400 rouble Corrientes for 29ds.

We notice the arrival of a large cargo 1313 tons cor' at Montevideo and another of lumber from New York.

We learn from the best authority that it is the intention of the National Government, immediately on the meeting of Congress, to have the whole of the Treasury notes 8s of the late Government, referred to a committee, with a view to their immediate payment. We understand that all those assigned during Mr Riestra's administration, will be immediately paid with interest.

On change today there was a good deal of talk about our future Government, and notwithstanding all the attempts of our somnil ous contemporaries, Mr Rivadavia is, united by all our city merchants both native and foreign, as the right man.

Amber Teeth Setting.
156—Calle Cuyo—156

Charles E. Krause sets teeth by a new invention, amber, which is found superior to every other mode. It accommodates itself to the gums and palate much better than gold, which requires springs. A set of teeth in amber, after two days, cannot be distinguished from a natural set. I will also clean teeth with great care.

I have a number of instrument for extracting roots of teeth, also for stopping the cavities with gold, silver, &c., which I guarantee for a number of years.
